VISUAL 2.3 ▲ Answers to Activity 2.2

1. The dollar has depreciated, and the Euro has appreciated.
2. Less expensive. The Euro has appreciated, thus buying more dollars per Euro than before.
3. $0.84 \text{ €} = $1.00$ because the depreciated dollar will not buy as many Euros.
 $0.86 \text{ €} = $1.03$ because the appreciated Euro can buy more dollars.
4. Americans will have a less expensive trip because of the appreciation of the dollar. A dollar will buy more yen, 122.5 instead of 120.
5. Japanese must pay more for American products because the depreciation of the yen means that it takes more yen to buy a dollar.
